Peaceful Summer Fest 2024

By Jibreel Jalloh

As National Gun Violence Awareness Month concluded, our community came together to foster unity at the Peaceful Summer Fest 2024, held on Saturday, June 29th, at Bildersee Playground. The event united residents, artists and community organizations for a day filled with music, food and fun, aiming to counteract recent violence with a celebration of togetherness and community spirit.

Canarsie is a neighborhood known for its hardworking and resilient residents. Despite the challenges of gun violence, the community remains committed to creating a safe and supportive environment. "Canarsie is a beautiful community overall," said Andre T. Mitchell-Mann, Founder of Man Up! Inc. USA. "The overall majority of Canarsie is great people, hardworking people, and they have been dealing with some violence, and we're working to reduce the violence."

The timing of this festival was crucial, as it followed two recent shootings. "We know that sometimes violence does go up in the summer," A.T. Mitchell-Mann explained. "We, the community, want to get in front of it. We want to promote performances. We want to put on events like this that we know from experience reduces gun violence."

The Peaceful Summer Fest 2024 was not just a day of entertainment; it was a proactive measure to foster a positive and peaceful atmosphere in Canarsie. By bringing the community together in a joyful and safe setting, the festival focused on unity and peace. The lineup of performers, including D Sturdy, Lil' Mama, Phresher and DJ Drewski, engaged and inspired attendees.

Councilwoman Mercedes Narcisse emphasized the festival's importance in promoting community spirit and safety. "This festival is a great opportunity to demonstrate that love and community spirit will always triumph over violence." She looked forward to seeing everyone come together to enjoy the festival and to build a stronger, safer Canarsie.

The Peaceful Summer Fest 2024 stood as a testament to the power of community action and the unwavering commitment to fostering peace. As residents gathered to celebrate, they sent a powerful message that unity and resilience will always overcome adversity.

National Grid Updates – All Over Canarsie

By Bristol Hendrix

National Grid is updating piping across Brooklyn, and work crews were spotted recently next to the Jamaica Bay Library, at 9727 Seaview Avenue, making repairs on gas lines in the area.

A National Grid spokesperson told the Canarsie Courier that the planned updates to the region are just scheduled maintenance to keep gas pipes up to date. The work replaced a transmission valve at Seaview Avenue and East 98th Street. The roadway that faces the library was closed from June 8th to June 10th.

The performance took place in the school's auditorium under the guidance of Ms. Gibbs, the drama teacher. The African Savannah was brought to life on stage with Simba, Rafiki and an unforgettable cast of characters.

Marine Park*Hate Graffiti in Local Park Sparks Community Action

By Robert Pearl

Another disturbing incident of hate was discovered in a children's park in the heart of Marine Park, where antisemitic graffiti was found scrawled on playground equipment on Wednesday, June 26th.

Stephanie Benshimol, a concerned citizen and community activist, who was at Marine Park when authorities and elected officials arrived, recounted the tawdry tale. According to Benshimol, on Tuesday evening, June 25th, her friend was at the park with her kids when a few teenagers taunted them with chants of "Free Palestine" and "F Israel." This occurred while Jewish families were enjoying the park, and the very next morning the playground was filled with hateful graffiti.

Upon discovering this, Benshimol and community members took action, making phone calls that led to Assemblywoman Jaime Williams visiting the site to investigate. Williams, whose district includes the diverse Marine Park, promptly alerted the Parks Department. They quickly deployed staff to clean and paint over the hate-speech graffiti.

Benshimol expressed concern about the impact of such incidents on children, especially now that schools are out and the park is a popular spot for summer camps. She emphasized that Marine Park is a place for people of all colors, creeds and religions to enjoy, and incidents like this could spoil a season of fun. "This is a kids' park, where babies play, and it should never have happened," she said.

Williams shared her dismay, noting, "It is very troubling to see antisemitic slurs written in our park situated between Marine Park JHS and the Carmine Carro Community Center. This park is enjoyed by many families and children of all ethnicities. I am thankful that the NYC Parks Department acted swiftly in removing these hateful signs. Although the signs were covered up, it is my duty to let the community know that this incident happened and we will not tolerate such hate. United we stand!"

Williams thanked the Canarsie Courier for covering the story and the president of the Marine Park Jewish Center for alerting the community, as well as a special thanks to Benshimol for reporting the hate crime and standing strong against it.

Caribbean Heritage Celebration Draws Hundreds to Canarsie

By Brenda Cox

The adage, "It Takes a Village," was quite evident at the 4th Annual Caribbean American Heritage Celebration held at 1222 East 96th Street, on Saturday, June 22nd. Natives from everywhere in the Caribbean – Jamaica, Barbados, Guyana, Haiti, Grenada Carriacou and Petite Martinique, Trinidad and Tobago, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, Costa Rica and so many more Caribbean nations – turned out dressed in native island colors, proudly waving their national flags.

The food was everything Caribbean. Soupe, pelau, jerk chicken, fried pork, black rice, dhalpourie, pine tarts, breads and coconut sugar cakes were just a sampling of the delectable delights that were dished out at the different island booths. A local DJ blasted calypso and soca music produced by Caribbean artists. Skinny Banton's "Wrong Again" was quite stirring.

There was a dance performance by the Grenada Cultural Dance Group, African drumming by Divine Explosion Art Program (D.E.A.P.), steel pan playing by Akinola Sennon and singing by Braata, a folk group.

Born in Trinidad, Assemblywoman Jaime Williams (AD 59) conferred a proclamation on businessman Calvin Sennon (also Trinidadian), proprietor of TriniJam and organizer of Celebrate Canarsie, for establishing Visit Canarsie, a nonprofit organization aimed at "strengthening the economic vitality, cultural richness and environmental sustainability of the Canarsie neighborhood."

Michael Brizan, Counsel General of Grenada Carriacou and Petite Martinique, and Andre Laveau, Counsel General of Trinidad and Tobago, were also on hand to celebrate the occasion with Williams, other Caribbean leaders and their constituents. Laveau invited everyone to Times Square on August 11th to celebrate World Steelpan Day, "an occasion that honors the unique musical instrument invented in Trinidad and Tobago" by a native son, Winston "Spree" Simon.

A plethora of benefactors, including Congressman Hakeem Jeffries, State Senator Roxanne Persaud, Assemblywomen Jaime Williams and Monique Chandler-Waterman, District Leader Frank Seddio, the Newton Foundation, the 69th Precinct Community Council, Flatlands Civic Club, Inc. and the NYPD, collaborated to make the Caribbean Heritage Celebration possible.

Other sponsors and vendors were EmblemHealth, Four Seasons, Kings Plaza, Bical Auto Mall, CCDI, TriniJam, Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, Tropical Fete, WIADCA, Canarsie Merchants Association, Community Board 18, Triad, Millennium Development Inc., Sesame Flyers, 1 Cato Sno Cone and My Time Inc.

Several Lions from District 20 K 1 did double duty volunteering at the event while representing their home countries.

Persaud, a Guyanese native, stated to the Canarsie Courier, "We are all a diverse group of people, and I'm happy to showcase and celebrate that for the fourth year in a row. The key word is always unity, and this event brings the community together in the most special way."

On Monday, June 10th, faculty, family members and classmates gathered in the auditorium of P.S./I.S. 66, at 845 East 96th Street, for the last drama performance of the school year – Annie JR.

Annie JR. is based on the popular comic strip, featuring everyone's favorite little redhead – Little Orphan Annie – in her very first adventure.

BK and Queens Unite: Massive Caravan Rally Against Lease Renewal of Migrant Shelter at Floyd Bennett Field

By Robert Pearl

Amid the upcoming renewal of a lease between the city and the National Park Service to house asylum seekers at Floyd Bennett Field (FBF), a massive New Yorkers First Caravan Rally organized by the Coalition for Better Communities (CBC) and local civic associations took place on Sunday, June 23rd, drawing residents from Brooklyn and Queens.

The large caravan drove through Marine Park, Mill Basin, FBF, over the Marine Parkway Bridge, through the Rockaways and back into Brooklyn.

The rally began in the Avenue U parking lot of Marine Park, where frustrated and energized residents, elected officials and candidates for office drove into the heart of FBF. They called on city leaders to shut down the problematic migrant tent city at the federal site. The massive caravan, adorned with U.S.

flags, descended on the site of the massive migrant shelter, demanding that City Hall not renew its lease.

"Illegals are being prioritized over New Yorkers, and many, many New Yorkers feel that this crisis is just not debatable, and there's no end in sight," stated Brenda Lee, a Marine Park resident and co-chair of the CBC.

Ron Canterino, co-chair of the CBC, and New Yorkers First group, expressed his gratitude to the participants. "We want to thank everyone who helped and came. It was outstanding—over 125 cars, 43 bikers, two big trucks and sound system by local DJ Ross [Faillace], who runs a non-profit for Back the Blue in support of the police," he said.

Assemblywoman Jaime Williams delivered a passionate speech at the rally, declaring, "Today, we're saying 'no more.' It's time that we take our community back, our city back, our state back," she said, sending a very clear message and urging our borders to be closed.

FBF is one of many shelters throughout the five boroughs, since the surge in arrival of asylum seekers sent to New York (a declared sanctuary city) overwhelmed the capacity to provide housing and support services.

Curtis Sliwa, head of the Guardian Angels and NYC mayoral contender, emphasized the non-political nature of the rally. "This isn't about politics," Sliwa said. "It's about what's right and wrong. This rally says we support immigration—legal immigration. It's not safe for the migrants. It's a floodplain, and it's horrible for the neighborhood and the quality of life. We're going to keep the pressure on until we close FBF."

This caravan rally, months in the making, was a follow-up to a successful rally at Kings Plaza on April 14th (see "Brooklyn Unites: 'New Yorkers Come First' in Huge Rally at Kings Plaza," Canarsie Courier, April 18, 2024).

Queens Councilwoman Joann Ariola (D-32), who joined with Williams in the failed lawsuit to shut down the camp, told protesters, "We need to be able to go to our national park and enjoy it. That was taken from us this summer, and [the lease] must not be renewed."

Assemblyman Michael Novakhov (D-45), an immigrant himself, representing a district with many immigrants, emphasized that those who crossed the border illegally should be deported and urged elected officials to listen to the people.

Paul King, a candidate for Congress, echoed the sentiments of many participants. "It is so important for the people to speak up, even when the powers in D.C. don't care. They can either listen to the law-abiding, tax-paying citizens or we can fire them in November. Today, Brooklyn and Rockaway put them on notice."

Recently, Williams, King and Elizabeth Morrissey, president of the Madison-Marine-Homecrest Civic Association, testified in Washington, D.C. at a hearing opposing the lease renewal (see "Assemblywoman Williams Urges Non-Renewal of Floyd Bennett Field Lease Amid Migrant Crisis Impact," Canarsie Courier, June 20, 2024).

Williams told the audience that education should be a part of every Juneteenth celebration and explained that we can never forget our past. "I once heard it's important to dig up the past because in order for us to know our future, we have to go back into our past," she stated. "Today, we saw our youths singing and clapping and stepping, but the true meaning of Juneteenth is for us to educate! Educate! Because if we don't educate, we will not remember our past."

She referenced atrocities like the Tulsa Race Riots (or Black Wall Street Massacre as it's commonly known) and its lingering impact on black and brown communities today. She showed a short film titled, Before They Die, about the massacre and warned that our communities face the same threat of annihilation in the name of urban renewal, a "fancy word" for the City of Yes, proposed by Mayor Eric Adams.

"These things are created to systematically destroy communities like ours," Williams pointed out. "Communities that your grandparents, your mothers and your fathers have worked for all their lives, to purchase a home, to give you a chance in this community, to grow generational wealth," she stressed.

In their remarks, Persaud and Chandler-Waterman praised Williams for pulling the event together. The senator stated, "For our communities to survive, for our communities to thrive, we have to be willing to come together and do the thing that will build our community and that's what we're doing here today." Chandler-Waterman agreed and added, "We talk about our freedom, but our freedom is in every single one of you. It's in our hearts."

The group presented a citation for exemplary service to Tiffany Stewart, a Performing Arts Coach who has trained P.S. 276 Queen Beez steppers, among others.

Williams concluded her speech by saying, "We are a resilient people. We shall not be moved! And lastly, we treat each other with respect!"

The celebration was sponsored by the 69th Precinct Community Council and Flatlands Civic Club, Inc.

A Night of Excellence

By Bristol Hendrix

More than 200 students, parents and educators dressed in their most elegant gowns and suits were the stars of the District 18 – Excellence in 18 Gala, a lavish event that took place on Wednesday, June 12th, at P.S./I.S. 66, at 845 East 96th Street. This year's theme, "Celebrating Excellence: A Night of District 18 Stars," was a tribute to all the local heroes who went above and beyond this school year.

During the event, 189 awards were given out to children, educators and those who excelled in District 18, which is made up of 21 schools, including 14 elementary schools and seven middle schools. Superintendent Celeste Terry has led the district since the 2020/2021 school year. A Brooklynite and long-standing leader in the education field, she told the Canarsie Courier, "We were thrilled to celebrate our scholars and educators at our second annual Excellence in 18 event! This event honors the dedication of our educators and the achievements of our students, who excel in both academics and character."

Each student was honored with three awards. One of the many awardees, Landan, received an award for academic excellence, 45 All Stars and a City Council citation. He told the Canarsie Courier he was most proud of the academic excellence award because he works hard to maintain his grades and was recently enrolled in the National Junior Honor Society. Landan loves math and everything related to it, which is why he plans on becoming a physicist. He also enjoys playing basketball and video games.

Each school was given the opportunity to crown their own Educator of the Year. Mrs. Comrie, a middle school teacher at Brooklyn Science and Engineering Academy, was one of the awardees. A longtime educator who's been teaching for over 17 years, she was inspired to become an educator thanks to her teacher, Ms. Cooke, while she was a student in her home country of Jamaica. Cooke made learning fun, and she wanted to do the same for other children. Now, as an educator who teaches English Language Arts at the prestigious Brooklyn middle school, Comrie told the Canarsie Courier that she's intentional about connecting with her students on all levels of their lives, not just in the classroom. She believes it's important to understand that children need more than just a lesson plan when being educated. Comrie said she was honored and humbled to receive the award because she works alongside some amazing people, and she knows it must have been a difficult decision for her principal, Angela DeFilippis, and administrators to make.

The event was a community partnership between District 18 and local leaders such as State Senator Roxanne Persaud, Councilwomen Mercedes Narcisse and Farah Louis. Millennium Development, Rich Connelly of the American Debate League, Notes in Motion, and Principals Krystle Charlemagne of P.S./I.S. 66, Jennifer Troman of P.S. 276, Verna Taylor of P.S. 272 and Angela DeFilippis of M.S. 763 also played a role in making this event spectacular.

The night was filled with cheers, hugs and entertainment. The catered event featured a variety of fun activities throughout the night and performances by students from P.S. 66, P.S. 114, and P.S. 244. It was a great night of celebration for all—students, family and the community.

The Cool Sounds of Kool Elements at Salsa Night

By Linda Steinmuller

The Kool Element Latin Jazz Project delighted salsa music lovers on Thursday, June 27th, at the second concert of the Marine Park Summer Concert Series, sponsored by Assemblywoman Jaime Williams. Thunderstorms on Wednesday night postponed the concert, but Thursday evening brought beautiful weather for a night out in the park.

This is the third year Kool Elements performed in Marine Park, as part of Caribbean Heritage Month, which is celebrated during June.

The seven-piece band, led by Kool Elements' founder and Canarsie resident Eddie Martinez, played a selection of classic Latin hits from back in the day, creating beautiful sounds on the congas, bongos, upright bass, saxophone/flute, piano and timbale, along with the band's lead singer. The Latin band got the crowd going, and many got up to dance salsa and mambo all throughout the concert.

Donald Cranston, from Assemblywoman Jaime Williams' office, gave a repeat performance of a Caribbean song, "Ragga Ragga," delighting the crowd.

There were also raffle prizes for some lucky winners who won bottles of wine and gift cards.

The concert series will skip a week in celebration of the July 4th holiday. The Regina Opera will present their free "Al Fresco Concert," featuring your favorite operatic and instrumental selections on Wednesday, July 10th, at 7 p.m. Rain date is July 11th.

The Marine Park concerts are sponsored by Marine Park Alliance, Kings Plaza and Nick's Lobster House, among others, in coordination with State Senators Simcha Felder and Roxanne Persaud, and District Leader Frank Seddio, and in partnership with Millennium Development, NYC Parks and the Marine Park Community Association.

All concerts take place on the lawn near the bocce courts at 7 p.m. Bring a blanket, chair and your friends and family! For more information, call 718-252-2124.

Learning About Crawling Critters "Inching Along"

By Brian Moreno

Parents and children gathered at Dr. John's Playground at Gerritsen Avenue and Avenue X on Saturday, June 22nd, for the second event in the Marine Park Alliance (MPA) Summer Children's Series, known as "Just for Kids."

Saturday's "Inching Along" event was curated by Brooklyn Public Library (BPL) Librarian Melissa McCarthy and MPA board member Margot Perron. Inching Along presented an educational opportunity for families to learn more about the wildlife that surrounds them and create crafts depicting the small animals they learned about.

McCarthy started the event by reading several books to the children that noted the diverse communities of Brooklyn, starting with Hello, Brooklyn!, continuing with the comedic book, Worm Loves Worm, which showed insects interacting with one another, and finishing with the equally funny, Where Do You Poop?

Afterwards, Perron presented the craft section, where she talked about the anatomy of worms and showed children and their parents how to make their own animals, such as worms and butterflies, with fuzzy sticks, googly eyes and glue.

"I think that it is about strengthening bonds among organizations in the community, so that's really important to have us working together," said McCarthy.

"The biggest thing is that it's for the kids, that we have activities for them, that we have fun stuff for them to do. Stuff that is creative, constructive and safe."

With the help of the MPA and BPL, members of the community learned something new on a sunny afternoon. "It's an opportunity for the kids to be in the park, connect with community resources, both the library and the park, and use their imaginations," said Perron. "We had fun."
