Black-Owned Yacht Club in Canarsie

By Jibreel Jalloh

Along the Paerdegat Basin sits the Paerdegat Squadron Yacht Club, a historic Black-owned institution that has been part of the neighborhood's waterfront since 1963. For more than six decades, generations of families, working people and boaters have built a community there, passing down skills, traditions and a relationship with Jamaica Bay that remains very much alive today.

Recently, The Flossy Organization partnered with the club to bring neighbors out for a free sunset boat ride on Jamaica Bay. For many participants, it was their first opportunity to experience Canarsie from the water. The views were beautiful, but what stayed with us most was hearing the history of the club from longtime members Hugh and Bobby and understanding how deeply that history is tied to family and community.

Hugh's connection to the club began before he was born. His father joined in 1965, only two years after the club was founded, after coming across members building docks along the basin. What began as a simple conversation became a lifelong connection to the club. Decades later, Hugh and Bobby are among the members helping carry that legacy forward.

Their story also challenges many of the assumptions people have about boating and yacht clubs. The club was not built around exclusivity or uber-wealth. Its membership has included plumbers, carpenters, sanitation workers, transit workers, correction officers, police officers and other working-class New Yorkers. Members brought different trades and skills to the club, helping one another repair boats, maintain the property and make boating more affordable and accessible for the people around them.

That tradition of sharing knowledge may be the club's greatest legacy. For generations, members have shown younger people that the waterfront is not something distant or reserved for someone else. It is part of their neighborhood, part of their history and something they can learn to enjoy and care for themselves.

Too often, we think of history as something preserved in museums or written on plaques. In Canarsie, some of our history is still being lived every weekend, on docks built and maintained by generations of neighbors.

The Paerdegat Squadron Yacht Club deserves to be recognized not only for surviving more than 60 years, but for what it represents: working-class ingenuity, family tradition and a deep connection to the waters that surround us.

Sometimes the most remarkable institutions are the ones that have been quietly holding a community together all along.

Over the past few years, he has helped lead efforts to end gun violence, expand public transit and secure investments in local green spaces. East FlatbushNo Injuries as Attic Fire Spreads to Another Home*By Lloyd Mitchell

Firefighters fought hard to keep an attic fire in check but not before it spread to another building.

Engine Company 310 and Ladder Company 174 responded to 644 East 46th Street on Friday, September 25th, around 8 a.m.

They found an attic fire with heavy smoke in an attached two-story, wood frame private residence. About 65 firefighters from 12 units used three hose lines to knock down the main body of fire in both buildings. Searches throughout the buildings yielded negative results. The 15th Division placed the fire under control at 8:45 a.m. EMS paramedics reported no injuries during the fire.

The FDNY Fire Marshal's Office will investigate the cause and origin of the blaze.

Bright Futures Begin at Lil Sunshine Early Learning Center

By Brenda Cox

Children prepare a "pretend" meal.

Playtime on the seesaw.

Parents seeking a loving, welcoming space where their children can learn and thrive don't need to look any further than Lil Sunshine Early Learning Center, located at 4713 Avenue J. A fixture in the East Flatbush community for decades, Lil Sunshine, as it's affectionately called, has been a trusted home away from home for generations of children and families.

The director, Judith Providence, told the Canarsie Courier that teaching and caring for young children have always been her passion. As a child, she watched her Mom pour love and affection into the children whose parents, neighbors, family and friends dropped them off daily at the Learning Center. Providence said that even at that tender age, she "helped" -- unwittingly acquiring the knowledge and skills she needed when she took over operations in 2006.

As the mother of two grown children, one of them a teenage, special-needs son, Providence said she is even more patient and committed to providing a high quality of understanding and care for children. "Being the mother of a special-needs son, I respect that every child has their own special individuality, unique personality and learn and develop at their own pace," she stated.

"Where Little Minds Shine Every Day," is one of the mottos of Lil Sunshine. On a typical day, children are guided through a number of fun activities that allow them to explore and express themselves, while learning. Bubbly, 4-year-old Ariel, with the help of her younger friend Savannah, was able to pick out her (play) vegetables and prepare a healthy salad for the Canarsie Courier without being prompted. Ariel also recited some of their daily affirmations, which include "With Jesus: I am brave, I am kind, I am thankful."

"When the children age out of my program, they are more than just kindergarten ready," the director stated. "They are confident, valued, have high self-esteem and are ready to conquer the world," she stated proudly.

Providence said that creating young scholars and successful adults also requires instilling in the children good morals, love and respect for themselves and others. The walls of her brightly-colored classroom were covered with learning aids – numbers, alphabet, shapes, colors, affirmations. There were also toys and a spacious outdoor play area, complete with colorful slides, rides and other attractions for the children.

"Strong Beginnings, Bright Futures" is another core belief of Lil Sunshine. It caters to children ages 1-5, offering high-quality education and care and accepts vouchers from a wide range of agencies, including ACC, HRA, ACS, NYS and NYC. Lunch and two snacks are provided daily. Enrollment is ongoing. Once enrolled, "we become family," Providence stressed as she embraced a toddler.

She shared she feels especially proud when she learns that "her children" get accepted into a gifted or talented program later on or that they graduated high school or college and move on to successful careers. "I feel such joy in my heart," she said.

Lil Sunshine also offers after-school help with homework and other enrichment activities. For more information or to schedule a tour, call 718-252-0703.

Sixty-Third Precinct Community Council's First Meeting after Safest Summer Break

By Kari Lleras

Good news and recognition were a great way to kick off the first meeting of the 63rd Precinct Community Council after the summer break.

Held on Wednesday, September 23rd, at the Carmine Carro Community Center, at 3000 Fillmore Avenue, Captain James Tomasulo, commanding officer of the 63rd Precinct, praised the Cops of the Month for excellent arrests and presented them with plaques to honor their hard work and dedication.

Police Officers Ali Alomaisi and Abigail Nelson were acknowledged as July Cops of the Month for identifying an individual – from a photo – that was wanted for shooting a gun at two officers in the 101st Precinct. They apprehended the perpetrator, who had a knife and a magazine clip, without incident.

Assemblywoman Jaime Williams with July and August Cops of the Month along with Council members and other elected officials and representatives.

August's award was presented to Youth Coordination Officers Edwin Cruz and Romae Morgan-Ashraf for an outstanding arrest. The ShotSpotter device that detects and locates gunfire was activated, and a 911 call reported an individual firing a gun. An eyewitness stated that they saw a male wearing all black, and Cruz and Morgan-Ashraf encountered an individual fitting the description while on patrol. After a foot chase, the offender with a loaded weapon was taken into custody without resistance.

The Community Council is introducing a new, monthly award that will commend a pertinent member of the community that supports police officers and the precinct. Gena Malzaire, manager of Duane Reade on Ralph Avenue, the first recipient, was recognized as a valuable person in helping officers with information that solves incidents related to the store or surrounding community.

Alexander Gurevich, senior associate director, Office of Public Engagement from the Brooklyn District Attorney's office, stopped by with some great news and attributed it to the exceptional work of the precinct. He shared that there was a 29-day stretch spanning from July to August with zero homicides. "Year to date, we are almost 30% below 2025 in homicides for the year, borough-wide," Gurevich said. "Shootings and homicides continue to go down, and that is very important to state."

While crime statistics were positive, there were still reminders to stay vigilant with theft among the elderly and scam warnings. As unbelievable as it might sound, a harmless looking person will walk up to another, asking for prayers and the unsuspecting compassionate person will walk away feeling like they have done a good deed until they realize that their heirloom necklace is missing from their neck and they were the victim of a cruel scam.

The 63rd Precinct Community Council meetings are held on the fourth Wednesday of every month at 7 p.m. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, October 28th, at the John Malone Community Center, located at 2333 Bergen Avenue.

New Trees Planted on City of Forest Day

Volunteers load plant waste into vehicle.

By Angela G. Nannetti

Two hundred fifty trees were planted in Marine Park in celebration of City of Forest Day. The annual citywide event is meant to highlight the importance of urban forests in New York City. Volunteers from all walks of life gathered on Burnett Street, between Avenue U and Whitney Avenue, on Saturday morning, October 3rd, all geared up and ready to go. There, they joined forces with the Marine Park Alliance and Natural Areas Conservancy to take on the herculean effort of clearing space for such a large number of new trees. Teams removed various weeds and invasive plant species, as well as unwanted native species like the American Pokeweed. The large, bushy perennial grows aggressively, and its magenta stems and clusters of dark purple berries are toxic to humans and pets. Groups then proceeded to plant a variety of young, new trees along the perimeter of the fenced-off area of the park that surrounds much of Jamaica Bay, working well into the afternoon to complete their mission. Not only will the new trees beautify the area and help to clean the air, but they will also support local coastal woodland, forest habitats and wildlife communities for many years to come.

Marine Park

A Beloved Neighborhood Institution, Last of 12 Family-Owned Stores, to Close

A recent photo of co-owner Brian Marcus with manager Raul Lanes, who has worked with Marcus for 17 years, outside the store.

Brian Marcus surrounded by some of his many selections of fabrics.

By Loretta Chin

Fabrics Save-A-Thon, a long-running, family-owned brick-and-mortar store at 2452 Flatbush Avenue, and a community staple in Marine Park for 21 years, will be the last of 12 locations to close.

Brian Marcus, 60, the store's youngest co-owner, and his four brothers made the announcement via social media on September 14th where he thanked Marine Park for their patronage, support, friendship and loyalty.

"We have watched families grow, welcomed generations of customers, and shared in countless projects, celebrations and creative endeavors," Marcus wrote in the Facebook post.

He went on to thank the community for allowing their family business, founded in 1969, to be a part of their lives for 57 years and told them how much they will miss them.

The response was overwhelming with hundreds of reactions, comments and shares of the post, reflecting how deeply the closure affected their customers because of the many memories the store held for them and the effect it had on their lives. "People come in the store and cry," he said.

Marcus told the Canarsie Courier some history about the family business that was first opened in Brownsville by his father, Nat, in 1969, then expanded to Queens, the Bronx and Manhattan.

The Marine Park location, which has a basement and three floors, was chosen because a large fabric store had gone out of business in the Marine Park/Mill Basin area near Kings Plaza, and the area needed a replacement. It was also chosen because of its close proximity to the Belt Parkway, which brought customers from other areas.

Over time, they expanded their offerings to include arts and crafts, yarns, quilting supplies, home décor, baking supplies, Singer sewing machines, along with everything relatable to sewing, and unique items.

They had sewing, knitting and baking classes where community members not only learned new skills, but also began their own businesses with what they learned and with supplies they purchased from the store.

Schools used Save-A-Thon to make costumes for their plays and performances. Families used them to make clothes, Halloween costumes, custom tablecloths and holiday decorations, so the store that began as a fabric store was eventually weaved into the lives of the communities they served.

The business thrived because of personal service and attention, combined with affordable prices. "We went down to South Carolina to furniture factories to buy their leftovers and to the NYC garment district for liquidations," Marcus said. "Volume wise we were great. We bought cheap, and we sold cheap."

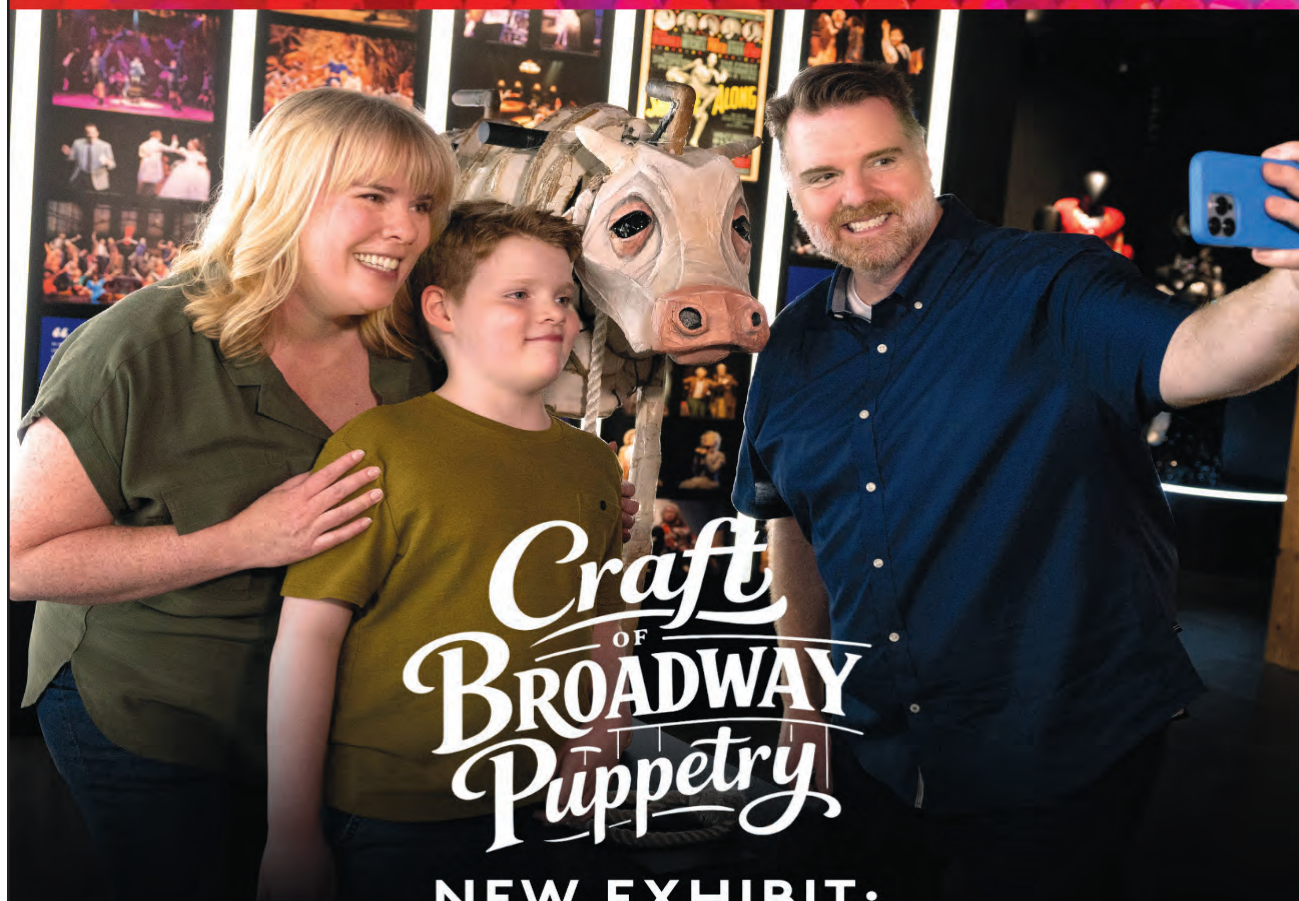

The brothers decided to close the stores for a combination of reasons. According to Marcus, retail has changed dramatically, especially since COVID. "COVID took us for a hit," he said. "I think people got used to buying online and brick and mortar became secondary to that, so we never bounced back fully."

The arrival of big-box retailers increased competition, while cheaper clothing and more women entering the workforce made sewing less popular. With the brothers at or near retirement, they decided it was time to close.

There were no plans to pass the business on to their children. They wanted them to have their own careers as they didn't see a future in retail and saw too many families fighting once the kids joined the business.

The closing of the Marine Park store will mark the end of an era as it will be the last of the stores expected to close in the coming months. Sales are ongoing as inventory is liquidated out of the warehouse.

Sixty-Ninth Precinct Community Council Holds First Meeting After Summer Break

By Brenda Cox

The 69th Precinct Community Council convened its first monthly meeting, after a summer hiatus, on Tuesday, September 29th, at St. Alban's Episcopal Church, 9408 Farragut Road. Council President Gardy Brazela welcomed everyone before inviting Reverend Gesner Sagesse to say an opening prayer.

Brazela gave updates on events such as National Night Out Against Crime, which they hosted in collaboration with community partners including local elected officials. He also provided a rundown of upcoming events -- free annual Thanksgiving Dinner for seniors at the New South Shore Manor, Toy Distribution and Christmas Party. "So, we do give back to the community. We don't just talk; we do the work," Brazela stated and expressed his gratitude to everyone for their support.

Before he introduced Captain Sashanna Wynter, commanding officer of the 69th Precinct, Brazela requested a moment of silence for three members of the community -- Sylvia Whiteside, past president of the Bayview Housing Association; Andre Louis, auxiliary officer at the 69th Precinct; and Leighton Brown, NYCHA employee and Brazela's neighbor, who was impaled by a falling tree during the prior weekend's Nor'easter.

Wynter commended everyone for turning out in large numbers. She raved about National Night Out Against Crime, the first she was privileged to host. She stated that the precinct will also be hosting events this October, in recognition of Domestic Violence Month. The captain warned about jewelry scams that target mainly the elderly. Perpetrators approach victims in a friendly manner under the guise of admiring their jewelry or using some other ruse, then switch the victim's valuables for something useless.

The captain also spoke about package theft and urged vigilance with deliveries especially during the upcoming holiday season, a time when there's usually an uptick in that crime. She suggested having packages delivered to a safe location, such as a FedEx or UPS drop box or even a neighbor, to minimize or avoid the risk of them being stolen.

Wynter announced that as of September 30th, eight new officers from across the city will be joining the 69th Precinct in a permanent capacity. On October 30th, another 20 to 30 officers will also be assigned to the 69th Precinct as part of their six-month post Police Academy training, which will be administered by her. She also reported that additional resources have been poured into Bildersee Park and its environs as a deterrent to crimes occurring there.

During the Q&A which followed, constituents raised concerns about numerous jobs, mainly construction, occurring in the community and expressed exasperation at not being aware beforehand and that the workforce did not include residents.

The next meeting of the 69th Precinct Community Council will be held on Tuesday, October 27th, at 8 p.m. at St. Alban's Church.
